General Risk Warning

These pages contain information about the services and products of the Company. All material on the Company's website is provided for informational purposes only without regard to any particular user's investment objectives and/or financial situation and do not take into account special investment goals, financial situation or specific needs or demands of individual users.

Foreign exchange trading, whether or not made in accordance with a recommendation in an analysis, can be very speculative and may result in losses as well as profits. Foreign exchange trading entails a considerable risk factor and is therefore not suitable for every investor. All transactions in the Financial Instruments as are described in the "Terms and Conditions for the Provision of Investment Services" involve a high degree of risk and are not suitable for many members of the public. Such transactions should be entered into only by persons who have read, understood and familiarized themselves with the style of exercise, the nature and extent of rights and obligations and the associated risks.

The high degree of "gearing" or "leverage" is a particular feature of the Foreign exchange trading. This stems from the nature of the financial market system applicable to such trades, and a relatively small movement in the underlying market can have a disproportionately effect on the Client/customer/investor's trade. Prior to making any investment or entering into any transaction, you should carefully consider your financial situation and consult your financial advisor(s) in order to fully understand the risks involved and ensure that the products you choose are suitable to your situation.

No information contained herein is to be construed as a recommendation; or an offer to buy or sell; or the solicitation of an offer to buy or sell any currency, security, financial product, or instrument; or to participate in any particular trading strategy in any jurisdiction in which such offer, solicitation or trading strategy would be illegal. This notice do not purport to disclose or discuss all of the risks and other significant aspects of any transaction, so the client/customer/investor undertakes and warrants to consult with his own legal, tax and financial advisers prior to entering into any particular transaction.

This notwithstanding, data and information provided may become subject to changes while posted on the Company's website. Therefore, the Company does not assume any liability towards nor gives any guarantee to any investor or third party for the timeliness, accuracy and completeness of the information provided herein or on other websites that may be accessed through hyperlinks. The Company reserves the right to change or amend the information provided at any time and without prior notice

Client/customer/investor Warranty

The client/customer/investor unreservedly acknowledges and accepts that, regardless of any information which may be offered by the Company, the value of any investment in financial instruments may fluctuate downwards or upwards and it is even probable that the investment may become of no value.

The client/customer/investor unreservedly acknowledges and accepts that he runs a great risk of incurring losses and damages as a result of the purchase and/or sale of any financial instrument and accepts and declares that he is willing to undertake this risk. The client/customer/investor should not engage in any investment directly or indirectly in financial instruments unless he knows and understands the risks involved for each one of the financial instruments.

The client/customer/investor acknowledges and warrants that he is aware of the risks, which may be involved in any investment directly or indirectly in financial instruments. He fully understands the extent of the economic risk to which he is exposed as a result of such transactions and have determined that such risk is suitable for him in light of my specific experience in relation to the transaction and my financial objectives, circumstances and (resources);

- The nature and fundamentals of the transaction and the market underlying such transactions;
- The legal terms and conditions for such transactions.

The client/customer/investor also acknowledges and warrants that he fully understands the terms and conditions of the transactions to be undertaken, including, without limitation: the terms as to price, term, expiration date, restrictions and of the terms material to the transaction;

- Any terms describing risk factors, such as volatility, liquidity, and so on; and
- The circumstances under which he may become obliged to make or take delivery of a leveraged transaction.

The client/customer/investor acknowledges that the high degree of leverage can work against him as well as for him due to fluctuating market conditions. Trading in such financial instruments can lead to large losses as well as gains in response to a small market movement. The client/customer/investor acknowledges that if the market moves against him, he may not only sustain a loss of funds, but he may also incur further liability to the Company.

The client/customer/investor acknowledges and accepts that he may sustain substantial losses on a Contract or trade if the market conditions move against his position. He also acknowledges that it is in his interest to fully understand the impact of market movements, in particular the extent of profit/loss he would be exposed to when there is an upward or downward movement in the relevant rates and the extent of loss if he has to liquidate a position if market conditions move against him. The client/customer/investor also understands that under certain market conditions he may find it difficult or impossible to liquidate a position, to assess a fair price or assess risk exposure. This can happen, for example, where the market for a transaction is illiquid or where there is a failure in electronic or telecommunications systems, or where there is the occurrence of an event commonly known as “force majeure”.

The client/customer/investor knows that placing contingent orders, such as “stop-loss” orders, will not necessarily limit his losses to the intended amounts, as it may be impossible to execute such orders under certain market conditions. The client/customer/investor also acknowledges that because the prices and characteristics of over-the counter transactions are individually negotiated and there is no central source for obtaining prices, there are inefficiencies in transaction pricing. The client/customer/investor consequently accepts that the Company cannot and does not warrant that the Company’s prices or the prices the Company secures for him are or will at any time be the best prices available to him.

The client/customer/investor declares and warrants that he has read, comprehends and unreservedly accepts the following:

- Information of the previous performance of a Financial Instrument does not guarantee its current and/or future performance. The use of historical data does not constitute a binding or safe forecast as to the corresponding future performance of the Financial Instruments to which the said information refers.
- Some Financial Instruments may not become immediately liquid as a result e.g. of reduced demand and the client/customer/investor may not be in a position to sell them or easily obtain information on the value of these Financial Instruments or the extent of the associated risks. When a Financial Instrument is traded in a currency other than the currency of the client/customer/investor's country of residence, any changes in the exchange rates may have a negative effect on its value, price and performance.
- A Financial Instrument on foreign markets may entail risks different to the usual risks of the markets in the client/customer/investor's country of residence. In some cases, these Risks may be greater. The prospect of profit or loss from transactions on foreign markets is also affected by exchange rate fluctuations.
- A derivative financial instrument (i.e. option, future, forward, swap, contract for difference) may be a non-delivery spot transaction giving an opportunity to make profit on changes in currency rates, commodity or indices.

The value of the derivative financial instrument may be directly affected by the price of the security or any other underlying asset which is the object of the acquisition.

- The client/customer/investor must not purchase a derivative financial instrument unless he is willing to undertake the risks of losing entirely all the money which he has invested and also any additional commissions and other expenses incurred.
- The client/customer/investor acknowledges and accepts that there may be other risks which are not contained above. The client/customer/investor should take the risk that his trades in Financial Instruments may be or become subject to tax and/or any other duty for example because of changes in legislation or his personal circumstances. The Company does not warrant that no tax and/or any other stamp duty will be payable. The client/customer/investor is personally liable for any taxes and/or any other duty which may accrue in respect of his trades.

Client Relationship

When applying for an account on the Company's website, each applicant will be subject to the relevant set of business terms. All applicants and clients are deemed to have read and understood the business terms and related policies applicable to them and their relationship with the Company. Prior to applying for an account the client/customer/investor should consider carefully whether investing in a specific Financial Instrument is suitable for him in the light of his circumstances and financial resources. Investing in some Financial Instruments entails the use of "leverage". Leverage means the use of various Financial Instruments or borrowed capital, such as margin, to increase the potential return of an investment. In considering whether to engage in this form of investment, the client/customer/investor should be aware of the following:

- The client/customer/investor may be called upon to deposit substantial additional margin, at short notice, to maintain his investment. If the client/customer/investor does not provide such additional funds within the time required, his investment position may be closed at a loss and he will be liable for any resulting deficit. With regards to transactions in derivative financial instruments, the Company is entitled, upon its discretion, to start closing positions when margin is less than 40%.
- Such transactions may not be undertaken on a recognized or designated investment exchange and, accordingly, they may expose the client/customer/investor to greater risks than exchange transactions. The terms and conditions and trading rules may be established solely by the counterparty. The client/customer/investor may only be able to close an open position of any given contract during the opening hours of the exchange.
- The client/customer/investor may also have to close any position with the counterparty with whom it was originally entered into. In regard to transactions in financial instruments with the Company, the Company is using an Electronic Trading Platform for transactions in Financial Instruments which does not fall into the definition of a recognized exchange as this is not a multilateral trading facility and the Company is always the counterparty in every client/customer/investor transaction.
- The Company may not provide the client/customer/investor with investment advice relating to investments or possible transactions in investments or make investment recommendations of any kind. This prohibition is subject to an exception where advice given amounts to the giving of factual market information or information, in relation to a transaction about which the client/customer/investor has enquired, as to transaction procedures, potential risks involved and how those risks may be minimized.
